KEY AUDIENCES

STUDENTS

Speaking competitions provide students in Years 3-12 opportunities to develop a wide range of skill sets in communicating their ideas to an audience.

TEACHERS

Teachers are involved in a variety of ways: coaching students, facilitating debates, coordinating and hosting events, learning adjudication skills and developing understanding of whole-school coordination.

COMMUNITIES

School communities attend events where students showcase their leadership skills. The programs support developing awareness of the role of student voice in school communities and beyond.

Debating and Public Speaking programs help to develop confidence, analytical thinking skills, teamwork, written and oral communication, and the ability to think on your feet and construct arguments quickly. This is useful in any career path and contributes to personal and intellectual growth by prompting you to challenge your assumptions and ideas.

Student

I believe debating gives students access to the critical tools of dialogue which are fundamental to civil discourse and active participation in democracy. Students have very nebulous ideas of how policy is made or how reform develops and yet these not only shape the values of society but they also underlie the workings of our everyday lives.
